Assistance sought from Ministry of Health

Underserviced area request endorsed

by Jerry Grozelle

The municipality will seek the help of the Ministry of Health in attempting to resolve the shortage of doctors in Minden.

Anson, Hindon and Minden council passed a resolution asking the Ministry of Health to designate the municipality an "Underserviced Area".

The Underserviced Area Program is administered by the Ministry of Health to provide financial incentives to recruit health care professionals to practise in areas of Ontario designated as underserviced.

Council considers this area underserviced since St. Joseph's Hospital has deemed it necessary to close the emergency services administered from the Minden Hospital, for a total of 40 hours per week, because there is a lack of doctors to provide on-call emergency services.

Council, and the community are making every effort to entice physicians to the area.

In its resolution, council pointed out that the Minden Hospital provides health care for a tourist area with numerous municipalities, from various counties. It was also emphasized that: "From the months of May to October, the influx of summer residents increases the population serviced by the Minden Hospital by thousands, thereby creating an even greater need for immediate restored emergency services and further intensifies the severe impact of this situation, that resulted from a lack of physicians."

Copies of the resolution are being sent to Victoria-Haliburton MPP Chris Hodgson and to the St. Joseph's Hospital Board or their support.

Development approved

Council passed a resolution agreeing in principle to a site plan submitted by Mark Coles regarding proposed development associated with the purchase of the Ogopogo Lodge property on Mountain Lake.

Council inspected the site plan at last Thursday's meeting.

"I'm pleased to see that the septic system has been moved to the back of the property, away from the lake," said reeve Jeanne Anthon.

Agreement in principle was granted on the conditions that parking be upgraded to municipal standards, that a site plan agreement is entered into with the purchaser, and that final health approval is obtained.

During council's discussions it was agreed that two other provisions: namely, that the two existing cabins be relocated to meet municipal setback specifications; and that planning fees be

Number of boards studied

by Andrew Milne

Minister of Education and Training Dave Cooke announced February 23 that the number of boards of education in Ontario would be reduced by 40 to 50 percent.

But it is unclear at this point whether this will affect the Haliburton board.

In the same announcement, Cooke announced initiatives apparently aimed at controlling administrative costs within boards, and at decreasing the number of trustees.

The administrative officers of the Haliburton board, along with administrative officers from across the province met with Cooke the same day to discuss the plan. Director of education Brad Saunders, superintendent of business Jim Bradley, and superintendent of education Dale Robinson returned from To-

Happy with Highlands Hospitality

by Carol Moffatt

They came, they rode, and they raised more than $14,000 for Easter Seals. The first visit of Women on Snow roared into the Highlands last weekend (Feb. 17, 18, 19) and, from all accounts, was a resounding success.

Sixty-three year old Marie McDonald was one of the oldest riders last weekend. Hailing from the Ottawa Valley area, McDonald was riding with her longtime sledding partner Elda Cook, 63, and her daughter-in-law Kim, 37.

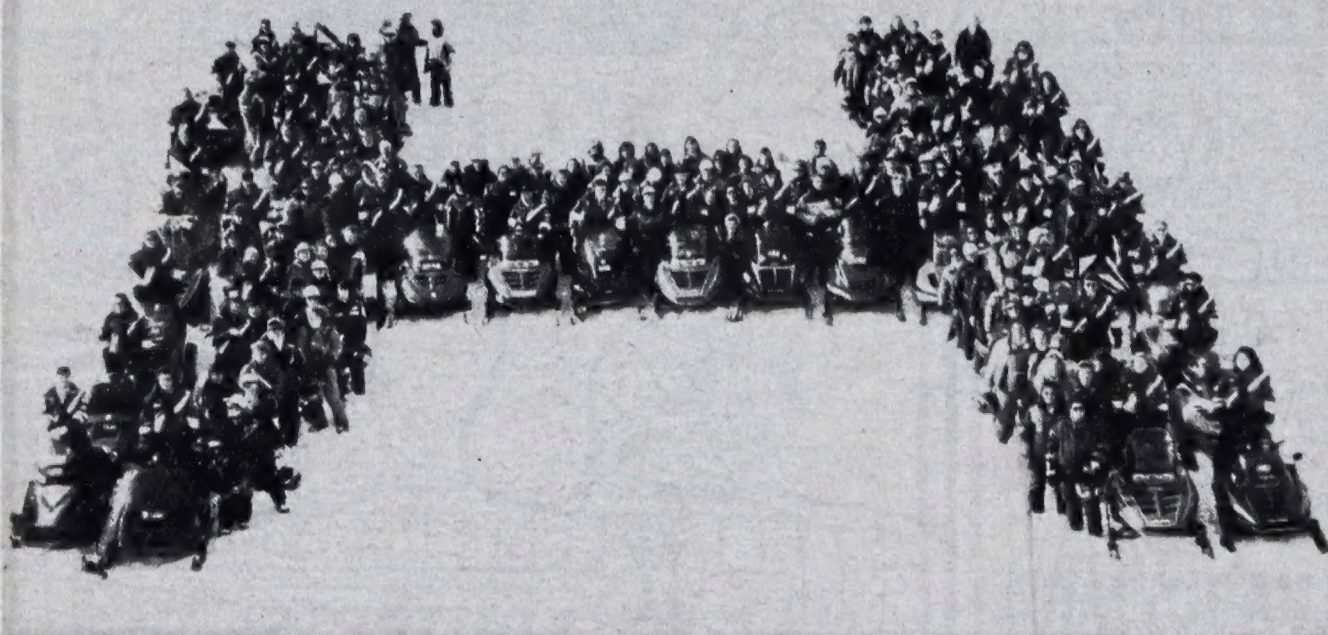

"They fussed over us all week. When I left, my husband only said to have fun and check the oil," said McDonald, the elder, with a laugh.

"My husband was so relaxed he left to go fishing, so I got a couple of goodlooking young guys in my neighbourhood to load my sled for me," added Cook, with a wink.

For them, the weekend in Haliburton was well worth the visit.

"Fantastic, and really well organized," were two terms they used to describe their ex-

MD shortage spurs actionGroup responding to crisis

An ad hoc community committee has been formed in an effort to resolve the current shortage of doctors in Minden.

The group represents a cross-section of citizens from the area served by the medical community in Minden, including elected officials, representatives of service groups and citizens at large.

Spokesman for the group, Jack Brezina of Minden, said the group met just days after the announcement regarding the reduction in emergency services at the hospital. "It was obvious from the response that the community is keenly interested in resolving the shortage of doctors and ensuring the numbers do not drop this low again," Brezina said.

According to the spokesman, the group has met with the doctors who are practising in the Minden area now and sought their assistance and input in dealing with this problem. "The doctors serving the community now are dedicated and hard-working," he noted, "They deserve our support, especially as this present crisis puts them under additional strain."

He noted that the shortage of doctors has not only affected the emergency hours at the hospital, but has had an impact on the operation of the satellite medical clinics in Kinmount and Cobocok. "The people from northern Victoria and Peterborough counties share our concern and are supporting the efforts to find a solution," he said.

Minden Reeve Jeanne Anthon, a member of the committee, said she was pleased to see the positive and enthusiastic response by the community to this crisis.

Coming back next year*(from page one)* were two terms they used to describe their experience here.

For organizers, the event went well. With 196 riders, there were only half a dozen mechanical breakdowns, and only two minor injuries (one of which occurred in the hot tub).

President of the Haliburton chapter of Women on Snow, Marj Kennedy, had nothing but praise for everyone involved.

"I'm thrilled. The HCSA did a fabulous job and the Pinestone was fantastic to us. The ladies were really pleased with their treatment, the trails and with the Haliburton hospitality," she said.

Despite the uncooperative weather leading up to the weekend, the trails were in excellent condition for the event. There were a few glitches, says Kennedy, "but that's bound to happen in the first year of an event of this size," she added.

Half of the $14,700 raised will be used to help handicapped children in the county and there's still more money to come in, says Kennedy.

The event was such a success that more than 100 riders have already pre-registered, and put down a deposit, for next year.

"The demand is high and I think it's pretty prestigious to ride with this event," said Kennedy.

Committee members held a wrap-up celebration early last week, but that's the end of the parties. The first committee meeting for Women on Snow 1996 is scheduled for early next month.

Meet the Kids on the Block

by Andrew Milne

"The little kids — their faces are just in awe when they see these puppets. They just love them."

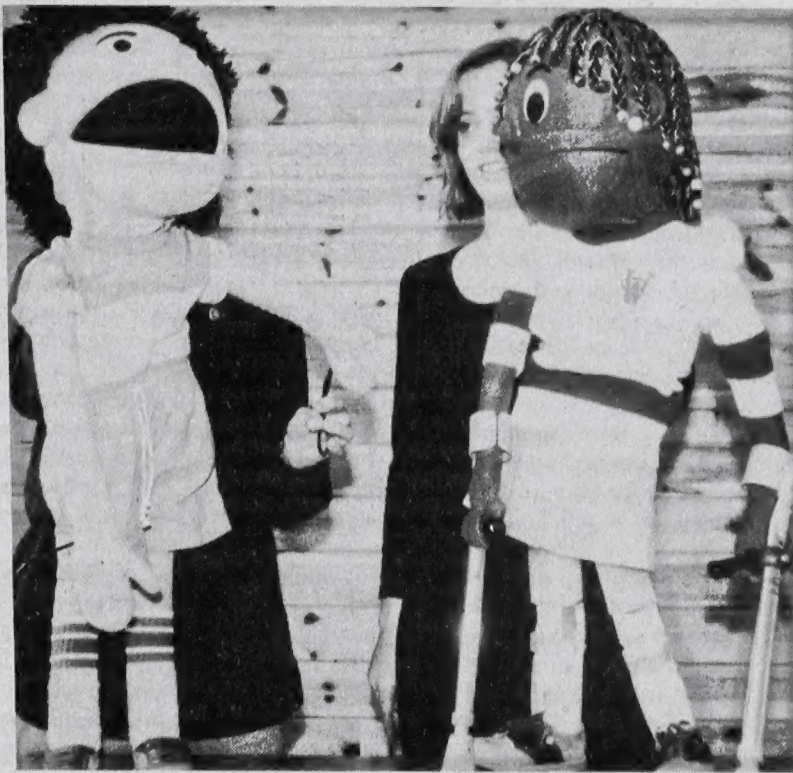

The very enthusiastic volunteer who had that to say about the 'Kids on the Block' puppet shows was Fay Allen, who also does the bookings for the program.

To put it in one sentence, Kids on the Block do puppet shows about social issues.

The 'Kids on the Block' program was developed by Barbara Aiello in the United States, and shows are now done for children all around the world. The program was brought to Haliburton County in 1994 by the board of education.

The idea of the program is to deal with topics such as cultural differences, learning disabilities, divorce, bike safety, and medical conditions such as spina bifida and cerebral palsy, in a way which children find non-threatening, and which encourages participation. Children feel more comfortable asking a puppet awkward questions than they would asking an adult.

Allen says the local group that puts on the shows in this area already has a few bookings for this season. She just completed her first show of the year — a skit on name calling — in Dorset last week.

"The reason we went to Dorset," says Allen, "is there's this one little girl who has cerebral palsy, and the kids are calling her names and making fun of her, so the principal out there contacted us."

Allen says it is things like that the program is meant to address.

"Whenever things like that arise," she says, "the teachers hopefully will think about us and how much easier it is for the kids to relate through the puppets. After each performance they have a chance to ask us questions." It is the question period that often is the most informative as children are more apt to open up to the puppets.

This year, the Kids on the Block players are rehearsing skits on learning disabilities, cultural differences, cerebral palsy, drinking and driving, divorce, blindness, fire safety, name calling, and bike safety.

The popular divorce skit, for example, is called 'Caught in the Middle,' and deals with a child of divorced parents. The child, called Brenda, explains Allen, finds herself caught in the middle of her parents' conflict when her mother starts pumping her for information on her father.

"Brenda refuses to be caught in the middle," explains Allen, "and says her father often asks the same questions about her mom. Brenda suggests that her mom talk to her dad directly, and sets up a situation so they can do that. It's kind of problem solving too."

Last year the program gave over 50 shows in this county, for children in public schools, for community groups such as the Brownies, and for groups like Wee Care and CHACE place.

Lynda Shadbolt, one of the organizers of the program locally, explains that the shows are done in the Japanese bun raku ("I can see") form, in which the puppeteers stand directly behind the puppets, dressed in dark clothing, shadowing the puppets' moves.

"Hopefully, the audience concentrates on the brightly-coloured puppets," explains Shadbolt.

To find out more about the program, call Allen at 754-3017.

Board numbers under study

ronto without specific news of what was planned for the Haliburton board however.

There's a lot at stake in amalgamating the boards. The Haliburton board's annual budget is over $17 million this year, making it the biggest spender in local government in the county. Around $12 million of the budget for the board is levied locally.

Board of education chair John Munro was unavailable for comment after the announcement February 23. But told of the possibility a week ago, Munro had said he feels the board really has no option but wait and see what it will mean.

Cooke's announcement follows hard on the heels of several announcements made by his ministry to implement the recommendations of the recently released Royal Commission on Learning — and several of the initiatives announced are quite clearly in line with the commission's recommendations.

But the commission's report did not recommend amalgamation. It was actually Cooke himself who announced he intended to take steps towards the amalgamation of existing school boards to reduce administrative costs, a statement he made prior to the municipal elections.

The commission, on the other hand, didn't seem to feel Ontario had too many school boards at all.

Among other responsibilities, the commission had been directed to look into issues of governance, including "what is the most effective, efficient, organizational structure for elementary and secondary education in Ontario". After 20 months of study, the commission stated in its report. "...most of us didn't end up sharing the view of some Ontarians that we have far too many school boards... Ontario has far fewer school boards per capita than any other province in Canada."

The commission also concluded that the amounts of money that could be saved by amalgamating boards, "don't appear to be huge." The commission did however suggest that boards that were too small to be viable should be amalgamated.

The Haliburton board is considered a small board, says Robinson, but at the meeting Cooke spoke specifically of boards smaller than five schools as being considered for amalgamation.

The Haliburton board administers eight schools.

The task force to reduce the number of boards will have until September 1, 1995 of this year to draw up the boundaries of the new boards. The final boundaries will be put in place for the 1997 municipal elections.

paid for by the applicant, were waived.

Councillor Jerry Rome pointed out that these waivers should only be applied because of the circumstances of this particular case.

Coles had indicated that he had not been made aware that he would be responsible for payment of planner's fees. On the matter of the relocation of the cabins, since they were in place before the by-law was passed, they should qualify as legal non-conforming.

Staff praised

After passing a by-law establishing the rates and salaries of municipal employees, reeve Jeanne Anthon read a statement regarding that by-law.

"In 1994, the municipal mill rate was not increased, service levels remained constant, and Anson, Hindon and Minden was able to take advantage of all Canada-Ontario Infrastructure funds allocated to us to provide new jobs for the area.

In 1995, council will attempt to take advantage of further infrastructure funding, maintain service delivery and keep tax increases at zero, saving any unforeseen cutbacks from the provincial government. It is easy for a politician to demand that all this be achieved, but it is the ultimate responsibility of staff and employees to carry out these political mandates. It is only because of physical sacrifice and dedication on the part of employees that we have achieved a zero per cent increase in the past. Staff members are given council's trust and confidence to manage in a fiscally responsible way. They have produced excellent results in the past and council believes if employees are treated fairly, and as partners in management, this municipality will continue to produce an excellent level of performance."

She pointed out that wage adjustments reflect higher levels of certification and accreditation by some members of staff, shifts to reflect pay equity or social contract considerations and/or increased job responsibilities.

"Our volunteer fire department has had no increase in per annum fee for six years and has, instead, directed department funds to improve and expand fire fighting equipment. This budget has provided an increase as a signal that we recognize their extraordinary and critically important contributions to this community.

This is the sixth year that council members have received no increase in their salary.

In summary, staff wage adjustments have been made, while still preparing for a zero local budget increase."

Against gun Control

A letter was received by AH&M council from Victoria-Haliburton MP John O'Reilly. O'Reilly was responding to council's resolution opposing further gun controls. He reassured council that he intends to vote against the proposed gun control legislation.

Deputy-reeve Lewis Stevens commended O'Reilly for his stance on the issue.

"I hope he sticks to his guns," Stevens quipped.

Vendors regulated

A by-law was passed further regulating food vendors, specifically mobile food vendors such as chip trucks and ice cream carts.

The by-law states that such food vendors can't set up shop within 1,000 feet of an existing food vendor such as a restaurant, unless all established food vendors within a 1,000-foot radius give written permission.

Infrastructure funding

Anson, Hindon and Minden will be applying for a share of the Provincial-Federal Infrastructure Program funding that has been made available through the county's unused allocation that was set aside for a new county building.

Council passed a resolution asking for $400,000 in infrastructure money to be used for road upgrades, water and sewer upgrades, parks improvements and recreation improvements.

The resolution makes it clear that the municipality "will be solely responsible for all financial commitments beyond the provincial and federal share".

MEMBER ORDER OF THE GOLDEN RULE

Burk's Falls: Can a community health centre ever replace a hospital?

This is the second in a series of articles examining the closure of the hospital at Burk's Falls, a community about the size of Minden, 39 km north of Huntsville, and the impact it has had on that community.

Last week we examined the details leading up to the closing of the 19 bed facility and its emergency department. With the closure, it was suggested the facility be replaced with a community health centre. A CHC embodies a relatively new approach to health care, in which much more emphasis placed on prevention and education.

Over the past couple of years, during the discussion about the consolidation of acute care beds in Haliburton County, references have been made to providing the village which loses its hospital, with a community health centre. Although undefined, we can assume that the Burk's Falls model would be similar to the facility suggested for this area.

Under pressure from the Ministry of Health, the Acting Health Services Board for Haliburton County and Area, voted to consolidate the acute care beds at the Haliburton Hospital. However, the board, in the second part of its motion, also called for a 24 hour, seven days a week emergency service to continue in Minden. This service would be backed up by a number of so-called stabilization beds. While the consolidation portion of the board's motion has been welcomed by the Ministry of Health, the insistence of the board on a full-time emergency service in Minden has received a luke-warm reception from ministry officials.

The following report, prepared by Andrew Milne, focuses on the introduction of the community health centre in Burk's Falls, the economics of the new facility and how the services that were offered didn't match the expectations of the community's residents.

by Andrew Milne

On January 6, 1995, Marion Train, a school teacher living in Burk's Falls, went for a drive to Huntsville.

It wasn't exactly a good day for it. A snow storm that turned later to freezing rain made for a miserable trip. The 39 kilometre run, which usually takes her 25 minutes, she says, took her around an hour.

But it wasn't like she had a choice. Her 92 year old father had been coughing, and that morning, he had been struggling for breath. Understandably, she was concerned.

"Schools in Muskoka had been closed," she said, "so I was aware how bad the roads were. The buses were not running. My father had just come to live with me because my mom had died."

Train called her father's doctor, but he was on holidays. The office couldn't locate the other doctor who was on duty. She was getting increasingly concerned, she says. Her father sounded awful, and the storm was getting worse.

So, she called the Almaguin Health Centre, the community health centre that had replaced the Burk's Falls Hospital after it had been closed in 1992.

"I phoned over, and explained the situation, and asked if could I bring my father over, just to be examined. I suggested he needed some medication. Well no, they said, I could only get in by appointment.

"Then I made the mistake of asking 'What kind of hospital is this?'"

"Well," she says, "they were so busy correcting my terminology. First of all, it was a not a hospital. It was a health centre. And there was not an emergency department. And it went on and on. At which point I said, the roads are closed. The roads to Huntsville are virtually invisible. What am I going to do? Is there not a way you could squeeze him in? Well, no, they didn't see that this was a possibility, because they were booked right up. And so that did it with me, and I was on the road to Huntsville."

In the Huntsville emergency centre, Train's father was diagnosed as having pneumonia.

Train was not amused with the treatment she received from the health centre. And she says she isn't likely to bother calling it again in an emergency.

"Why would I waste the time arguing, 'are you a hospital?' I didn't have time for that. I had someone who was ill. I didn't want to argue terminology. Just help me. And that seemed to me — and this is what bothered me the most — that this was the least of their concern."

That, essentially, is the crux of the matter for most individuals in Burk's Falls right now. Their $900,000 a year health centre, operating out of the former hospital building, offers a range of services — from diet counselling to chiropody. It's almost a monument to preventative medicine as the way of the future.

But it does not offer urgent care.

And that, more than anything else, has been a source of tremendous friction between the centre and the community it is supposed to serve.

A new approach

The community health centre concept, in a nutshell, is that doing more work to prevent illness and injury makes a lot more sense than cleaning up the mess after it happens.

Marry this to the idea of amalgamating a lot of services related somewhat indirectly to public health — programs like HomeCare and Meals on Wheels — with the idea of doing it all in a more efficient and coordinated manner, and you've probably described it pretty well.

"And that's a concept that isn't unique just to health centres," says Peter Deane, director of the Parry Sound/Muskoka District Health Councils.

"Right across the health scene," says Deane, "what we've said is that health is a function of four components, and only one of those components is treatment. We clearly have a preoccupation as a society with the treatment phase — so much so that 97% of the funds are spent there. I suggest that they should be, but with the other 3% let's get at some of the many other factors around health, such as illness and accident prevention and health promotion."

The Almaguin Health Centre does seem to be working on this, but even here, criticism begins. Dr. Andrew Albert is a doctor with a practice in Burk's Falls. He was on the board earlier, he says, and he is trying to be open-minded about it, but he isn't that impressed with what the centre has to offer.

"I don't need the dietician really," says Albert. "It's icing on the cake. The physiotherapist is nothing new. She's always been there. The x-ray has always been there. That's nothing new. The placement officer, she was there sometimes, most of the time in Huntsville. But we had a placement officer at the hospital. I can't think of anything they've really added."

In the centre's defense, Deane says the point wasn't so much to add services, as to administer them more efficiently. But then you have to ask: if the centre's operating costs are around $900,000 a year, and the Ministry of Health cut $750,000 from Huntsville Hospital's budget in the wake of the closure of Burk's Falls, where then, are the savings?

A board under siege

Tim McDonald is manager of the Burk's Falls branch of the Royal Bank, and chairman of the board that runs the Almaguin Health Centre. Talking to him, one can't help but get the picture of a board with its back to a wall.

Impressions like those of Marion Train aren't unusual in Burk's Falls. McDonald shakes his head when he describes the relationship between the centre and the community it is supposed to serve.

"It's just that people wanted one thing, and we've been giving them another," he says.

Inside the health centre — inside the building that was once a hospital — there is a strange sense of the past lurking behind the present. Cal Tant — the executive director of the centre until just this week — he was just let go by the board — sits at a desk in what was once clearly a hospital room. Over his head are the curtain rods for the privacy curtains that go around a hospital bed. In one corner, there is the standard patient wash-room.

In the end of one wing sits the centre's x-ray machine. The machine's operator is actually on loan from Huntsville. The hospital holds the x-ray license. Don Mumford, the x-ray technologist, comes with the package.

The building, for its part, still technically belongs to the Huntsville Hospital. The terms of the lease were such that, should the hospital ever cease to use the property for a hospital, they would have to give it back, but three years later it's still in legal limbo.

Tant, McDonald, and anyone else who has the unpleasant task of trying to make this place work, all say the same thing. Urgent care....give the people urgent care, and they will be happy.

The original model for the Almaguin Health Centre, they say, included urgent care. But all attempts so far to make this happen have somehow failed.

"I knew it was not going to be a solution that would be available in a year," he says. "But I didn't know how long it would take."

Urgent care, or the lack of it, isn't the board's only problem, though it lurks behind many of the others. As of this week, the centre is looking for a new nurse practitioner, and a new doctor. Both are staff positions. Last week both employees announced they will be moving on.

Tant and McDonald are clearly frustrated by this. They have tried to make this work, they insist.

And many of the 13 member board are perhaps even more frustrated — and showing serious signs of stress for which their own health care people would probably recommend help. Since February 17, the day the board made the decision to let Tant go, six of them have resigned.

Tant was let go 'without cause', and the board members, on the advice of their legal counsel, aren't talking about the reasons behind their actions. Rumours abound about what these were of course, and not too surprisingly, the rumours all have something to do with urgent care.

The lack of urgent care services is most troubling

Payment for emergency services, and an exodus of doctors

In the first four months after the closing of the Burk's Falls hospital, the community lost two doctors.

Dr. Bev Hallam, died shortly after the hospital closed. Though semi-retired, he had still been seeing some patients right up to his death. It's probably not his official diagnosis, but the local coroner Dr. David Dempster wonders aloud whether the real cause was a broken heart, in the wake of the closure of the hospital he'd practised in for years.

The second doctor to leave his practise in the village was Dr. Martin Holmes. Holmes stated quite explicitly that the absence of the hospital had a lot to do with his decision. Without a hospital to make possible a varied practice, he said, he didn't want to stay on. After 16 years in Burk's Falls, he's now practising in Orillia.

There had been five or six doctors on rotation during the best years of the Burk's Falls hospital, says Dempster.

Now, the health centre is discovering that finding enough of them to cover the night hours is a serious challenge.

At the root of the urgent care problem, most sources say, is how the doctors are to be paid, and how the ministries funding the health centre will allow it to pay them.

Dr. Andrew Albert practices in Burk's Falls, and currently works in the Huntsville hospital's emergency ward.

"What people really want," says Albert, "is a doctor there in the evenings and on weekends... In order to have manpower in the evening in this day and age you have to get several doctors together, and form a call system. And you have to pay them. And that's why the emergency departments in the small hospitals in this province are having problems. The doctors are saying forget it, I'm going to run my office and just go home."

Peter Darling sells real estate and insurance out of an office in Burk's Falls. Prior to the closure of the Burk's Falls Hospital, he was a member of the Huntsville hospital's board of directors. He was the one who talked to the press just prior to Christmas 1991, and told the public that the closure had been proposed. Now, he's a member of the health centre's board.

Darling says the board is trying to solve this problem — trying to find the money to pay the doctors to form such a system. But the ministry hasn't been too happy yet with the solutions.

And the problem, says Darling, is a matter of how doctors are to be paid.

There are two ways to pay doctors, says Darling. You can put them on salary, or you can pay them by fee for service. For a small hospital like Burk's Falls — or for a facility like the Almaguin Health Centre — it is entirely impractical, even unnecessary, to pay a salary to doctors to fill out the call rota in the off-hours.

The answer to this problem in some hospitals is to "top up". The doctors work on a fee for service basis, provided the department is busy enough to make it worth coming in. If business is too slow — say, less than $300 a shift — the doctor's salary is topped up to that level. (A similar arrangement was recently considered by St. Joseph's Hospital and the doctors serving the Minden and Haliburton Hospitals. The offer was made to and accepted by the Haliburton physicians. The formula used to determine the size of the "top up", was based on the level of activity at the hospital, and resulted in a smaller payment for the physicians covering the Minden Hospital. However, the offer was never made to the Minden doctors and isn't likely to be made until the facility returns to 24 hour a day, seven day a week emergency service....something that will have to wait for an increase in the number of doctors available for on-call response.)

But in the Almaguin Health Centre, says Darling, the "top up" hasn't proved possible.

First of all, he says, the Ministry of Health and the Ontario Medical Association insist that no one negotiates doctors' salaries but them. The health centre's board had talked to the local doctors, and thought they had an agreement.

Then they went to the ministry, and were told they couldn't do this.

"Nobody of course tells you these things until you try to propose them," he says. "We'd spent three months working on it."

Secondly, the Ministry of Health seems to have a problem with mixing fee for service payments with any kind of salary.

And finally, there is the matter of the source of the funding. The centre receives financial support from two ministries — from the Ministry of Community and Social Services, and from the Ministry of Health. The money that comes to community health centres from the Ministry of Health is specifically meant to go to preventative initiatives. The department which administers that funding receives a tiny portion of the ministry's over-all budget.

"This is funding meant for community health services," says Darling. "The community health people say doctors and urgent care gets too much. There's a very small proportion allocated to community health centres. They're not going to take money out of there and give more to urgent care."

Peter Deane, of the District Health Council, thinks the difficulty the board has had in working out an arrangement for staffing the centre nights and weekends has more to do with personality conflicts, probably between members of the board, and between the centre and the medical community. The ministry, he says, is quite willing to work out any funding difficulties. And certainly in light of the recent resignations, it does seem the board is having trouble presenting a united front.

But Deane also says that, in some ways, the deck is stacked against the board right now. Wage negotiations between the Ontario Medical Association and the MOH never really took the concerns of rural Ontario into account, he said, in preparing for exactly this kind of situation. The board — and Burk's Falls — are suffering because of that.

Envelope funding and the myth of local control

And the quagmire the board finds itself in with respect to finding money to staff their emergency department leads directly to a question the board members find themselves asking all too often: if the Ministry of Health is telling them where they can and where they cannot spend their funding, do they really have any control of their health centre?

One of the attractive things about the centre in the first place was that it was to be locally administered. There was a painful regional conflict engendered when the Huntsville board first moved to close the Burk's Falls hospital. The people of Burk's Falls, the staff of the hospital, the doctors who worked there felt as though they'd been betrayed. And not too surprisingly, when the recommendations were drafted by the task force meant to establish what, if anything was to replace the hospital, it was proposed that the health centre would be controlled by a board made up of local people.

But in real terms, it would appear that the board has next to no say in how their centre is run.

The reason for that can be summed up in two words: envelope funding.

The Almaguin Health Centre is not funded the way a hospital is funded. Hospitals receive what is called global funding. That is to say, they receive a grant, or series of grants, and are largely responsible themselves for deciding how to allocate that money. There is a system of controls and safeguards — periodic reviews, the accreditation process, and the like — but by and large, the board of the hospital controls what is spent where. For example, a hospital board could have the option of scrimping, saving, and cutting back on other services to find the money to pay its physicians.

Not so the Almaguin Health Centre's board. Its funding is not global. It gets something else altogether, called envelope funding.

Ray Smith is leader of the East Parry Sound Muskoka Health Care Coalition — a group organized to lobby for better health care — and particularly better urgent care — for the Almaguin region. He comes up with a rather picturesque description of envelope funding.

"Envelope funding," says Smith, "simply means, 'We the ministry in our munificence — our omniscience — our great wisdom — say you will have that person, this person, that person, and this person. And they will do those duties, and we will pay you that money, this money.'"

"You remove a service and that's what we take away from your budget."

Which effectively means that the board of the health centre does not have the option of making the decision on its own to cut one position — say in management — and redirect the money to paying doctors who come in after hours.

So how, they ask, is this local control?

Robert Lapere

On August 3, 1995, three stories on the front page of the Almaguin News, the broadsheet that serves Burk's Falls and the surrounding area, told the story of a 16 year old who broke his neck in a local lake.

Robert Lapere had tripped while jumping into the lake, and went in head first.

Fortunately there was someone with him who knew first aid, and a doctor who lived on the lake arrived shortly thereafter.

Unfortunately, they were forced to wait a little longer for the ambulance.

Your choice

They're right.

The members of Haliburton County Council were absolutely right to have chastised Lutterworth Reeve Jim McMahon at their February 15 meeting. The reeve had broken the tradition of in-camera meetings of the steering committee and revealed some of what had gone on behind closed doors in an interview with The Times.

When an elected body, such as County Council decides to go into secret session, it is a common understanding that whatever is discussed behind the closed doors remains there unless there is a general agreement that the information can be released. Reeve McMahon was obviously in violation of that understanding and deserved the dressing down he received. As Snowdon Reeve George Simmons pointed out, the Lutterworth Reeve has no right to air the council's "dirty laundry" in public.

If the county council is going to operate in an efficient and unified manner, all members of the council must be assured that whatever they say behind closed doors remains a secret. If the elected officials can't trust their fellow members of county council, who can they trust?

He's right.

Lutterworth Reeve Jim McMahon was absolutely right to ignore the code of secrecy that surrounded the in-camera steering committee meeting which discussed the future of the county building. By coming forward and taking part in an interview with The Times, he demonstrated his concern over the way public business is often decided behind closed doors.

When elected, Reeve McMahon and all other municipal councillors swore an oath to act in the best interests of the community. That oath may have been taken at the municipal council table, but it applies equally to all venues where he is acting in his official capacity.

It is interesting that his actions were referred to as "airing dirty laundry". If the council, is attempting to hide "dirty laundry" we think, the public has a right to know about it. After all, these individuals were elected to carry out public business.

If this county is going to progress, it is time to move out of the era of closed door meetings and back-room deals. If the public can't trust the people it elected to represent its interest, who can it trust?

One more nail

Editor:

I would like to commend Donna Wu for her letter submitted to The Times explaining why her husband, Dr. Wu has been denied hospital privileges. It takes courage to talk publicly about one's "skeletons in the closet" so to speak.

The fact remains that closing Minden Hospital's night Emergency is one more nail in the coffin for the closure of our much needed hospital. What makes one hospital more important than another?

It appears to me that Minden has, living in our community, a doctor who desperately wishes to serve his patients and the community by actively being on emergency call and being able to allow admissions and visitations at the hospital.

It is refreshing after several years of only having "temporary" doctors in this area, that Dr. Wu and his family want to make Minden their home.

I would hope that St. Joseph's hospital in Peterborough will not turn a deaf ear to the patients utilizing our hospital and allow Doctor Wu these privileges, or are local politics and provincial politics more important than someone's health or more importantly life?

Isn't it interesting that Minden always has to fight constantly for something that has existed in our community for many years, such as the hospital, the most recent fight for the addition to our school and now it appears the County Building is at risk!

Shortly after the Municipal Election an article was printed in the paper that the Haliburton Reeve and his council would like to work with our Minden Reeve and her council. What a joke!

So far the fact remains Haliburton wants everything Minden has and we residents should happily give away these things and our choices for living in the Minden community.

A satisfied patient of Dr. Holliday-Rhodes and Dr. Wu:

Judy Davis,
Minden.

P.S. Thanks should be given to Dr. Marc Chayer and Dr. Warsi for their contribution to the community and their patients as well as Mr. Doug Campbell and Paul Heffer who continue to fight on behalf of the people who utilize our hospital.

Minden mustn't lose any more doctors

Editor:

If I may, I would like the pleasure of responding to the letter submitted by Donna Wu. (The Times, February 20/95)

Not so many years ago, Minden had to lose a very dedicated doctor by the name of Jeffery Lodenquai; not because he wanted to leave, but for the education of his sons, who attended both schools in Minden and Haliburton.

During the same time, Dr. Antony Holliday-Rhodes was our other doctor who is, to this day, still with us administering to the young and the elderly, both at his clinic and at Hyland Crest Seniors Home. The dedication of these two doctors has been exemplary. In the past few years, Minden has experienced the devastating and sad events of seeing doctors come and leave sometimes on short notice. At times, I feel that we as citizens of Haliburton County are being treated like Guinea pigs, repeating our medical records over and over again to new faces.

Courage

Hats off to Donna Wu! To disclose one's dependency (a very private thing) for the betterment of the community which her husband is trying to serve, took much courage. I'll be signing the petition and so should everyone.

At this time I would like to add another doctor's name who has been steadfast in his devotion to the people of Haliburton County. He is Doctor Harry Good, recently retired.

He and the other two doctors mentioned have been a great credit to this area, and I would like to say they are deserving of being called doctors who have only the welfare of our people in mind.

Now again we have a new doctor by the name of Dr. Bennett Wu, and again a very dedicated M.D. who makes house calls and who shows compassion, who listens, who doesn't hurry you out of his office and who only has your interest at heart. Minden needs this doctor desperately, let us not lose him.

What more does the college of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario and the credentials committee of St. Joseph's Hospital in Peterborough need to exonerate this dedicated doctor who has paid his debt to society.

We have members from this county who are in federal and provincial governments. Surely they must have a voice. It makes me wonder, if one of their loved ones needed emergency care and couldn't get it, would action be taken to correct the situation that exists at the Minden Hospital? Let this warning not be in vain.

I admire the courage and integrity of Donna Wu who had the "guts" to write and explain the circumstances that force her husband to be placed in the position that he is in. We who care enough to have a qualified doctor to look after us, please sign the petition at the Rhodes Medical Clinic. I also pray for the courage to see that things change in Minden.

Congratulations on Burk's Falls article

Editor:

Congratulations on the decision to run in-depth story on the Burk's Falls Hospital. Going outside the community to obtain a gauge of our present Minden situation was astute judgement. Reporter Andrew Milne has done a fine job of the whole article; particularly the political and "brinkmanship" angle.

Additionally, if we are to understand the present "effect" (reduced emergency service), I wish to suggest that back home soul-searching needs to take place. Warden Ross Rabjon has correctly identified an excessive tendency to criticise or be fault-finders as central to the problems at the County level of government. How many careers took new direction after only one year or less in our corner of the county? If our sister community, by comparison, can maintain a stable medical team of seven doctors on a continuing basis, is it reasonable to suggest that perhaps an element in our style (criticism) reflects itself in the thoughtful decision a medical person must make in the choice of a home and medical practice.

Public servants of a wide variety of occupations have run aground on the rocks of the Gull River; without overstating the case they are a small army.

Most moved elsewhere. Some stayed! While I was a teacher I tried to influence the positive with the fundamental notion, "catch the kid doing something good". That technique works equally well on adults. Be assured, I write not to add more criticism to the stew, but only in an effort to help understanding.

When it comes to flag-waving I'm with the old curmudgeon of Baltimore. One of the things I always loved about this country is that we don't take ourselves over-seriously.

Not for the Canucks the my-country-right-or-wrong mentality of our neighbours to the south. Let the Yanks stamp their licence plates "Live Free or Die", swathe their mailboxes in bunting and send their kids to jail for wearing Stars and Stripes patches on their bums.

Canadians suffer from a number of afflictions, but mindless Jingoism is not among them.

We're a peaceable lot. Someone once defined Canadians as people who, if you step on their toes, THEY say they're sorry.

All the same, there comes a point in the affairs of men beyond which even self-effacing Canadians should not trespass.

I think it's time we stopped punching ourselves in the nose.

It's an easy enough game to play — Canada bashing. Our dollar flutters spasmodically at the 60-cent U.S. level. Mostly because it suits international money markets to treat our dollar as a financial basket case.

Canadians play right along with the farce.

We even call our dollar "the loonie".

When Canada gets a national TV variety show, our critics join hands in an orgy of crucifixion of the host — Ralph Ben Murgui. From coast to coast he is sniggered at and sneered over as hapless and hopeless. And why?

Mostly because he's not David Letterman.

And Quebec? Ah, Quebec. The separatists of Quebec decide that they're altogether too classy for this Vaudeville Act called Canada — they're striking out on their own.

Corporate America has given up on us as well. That bible of capitalism, The Wall Street Journal recently pronounced Canada 'an honorary Third World nation' based on our national debt.

The irony was, The Wall Street Jour-

Well, a recent survey by a Swiss company ranking the world's best cities to live in is instructive.

No other country came close. The nearest an American city could get was thirtieth.

The United States isn't even on the chart.

Life is far from perfect in the Great White North. It's less glittery than Hollywood, less exciting than New York, less ritzy than Las Vegas or Rodeo Drive.

But you see fewer people sleeping on steam grates, not as many recovering from gunshot wounds, hardly any crack houses and not a single chapter of the Ku Klux Klan.

We love to bitch, we Canucks. We bitch about the weather and the taxes and the cost of living.

But if we stopped whining long enough to hear the voices of the rest of the world, we'd discover that most human beings, given their druthers, would love to trade places with us.

Not a bad thing to remember, as we lurch towards yet another showdown in the national divorce court.

Victoria Street School is still an alternative

(Editor's Note: The following open letter was sent to the Haliburton County Board of Education.)

Dear Mr. Saunders and Ladies and Gentlemen of the Board:

I, along with many other concerned persons, attended the meeting in the High School cafeteria on Tuesday, February 14 concerning the closing of Victoria St. School (VSS). This discussion has been going on for several years, but apparently is getting close to a final decision, hence the meeting.

The course of action which the management committee appeared about to recommend to the Board was the closing of VSS and the building of a $1.3 million addition on JDHSES to provide replacement classrooms. My main concern as a taxpayer is the spending of this amount of money on a new school at a time when our taxes are at record highs and we hear constantly from all quarters that it's time for restraint. We are $600,000,000,000 in debt and are apparently about to be hit by a severe Federal Budget. I suggest that we cannot afford this expansion at this time particularly if there are other much less expensive alternatives.

The most important concern, of course, is the education and well-being of the children who will be affected by the VSS closing. I have 3 grandchildren who are and will be in this age group over the next 5 years and their parents are obviously interested in obtaining the best possible educational environment for them in these very formative years. In this regard, the VSS has been, and continues to be, an excellent environment for grades K to 2. This is obviously due, in large part, to the quality of the teachers and programs but it is also due in no small measure to the location in our community and to keeping the small, very vulnerable children in this age group in a safe, protected oasis, but still with all the advantages of the community around them. 100% of the parents of the children who are or have ever been at community that women's shelters, advocates and institutions help and reward women to obtain revenge, make false accusations and, even more disturbing to the public, they enter statements on behalf of the female, bearing their very influential stamp of approval without scrutiny, maligning the male, to the courts. I believe this may be done to assure job security and funding for women's groups etc.

They don't seem to realize that women's movements, anti-violence groups, child service professionals, therapists, shelters, any and all affiliates, are quickly losing credibility because of their fanaticism. No one can deny that there are virtually no services for the basic male and these groups seem to be determined to create the illusion that they just don't matter.

If these bodies don't soon get an accountable, honest and most importantly, fair act together that represents both male and female, I think some essential services will be endangered and all for the empowerment of a feminist movement that we don't all care for.

M.Brady (Summer resident)
R.R.1, Minden.

VSS have only good things to say about this environment. I do not know of or have even heard of one parent who would prefer to have their children in a bigger school with older children.

The next consideration is "Is it, indeed, a safe environment?" I must assume that the Director would not allow these children and their teachers to be there for even one day if it is not basically safe. There is no doubt it is an old building which needs some refurbishing but it is certainly structurally adequate and could do a very creditable job for many more years.

Why then has the Board apparently ruled out replacing the portables at VSS with the necessary permanent classrooms, at what I believe could be a much lower cost, while still preserving this environment? Perhaps it is because they may be working under some misconceptions. When I asked at the meeting how much could be saved by adopting this course, I was advised that such a costing had never been done because an architect had recommended 7 years ago that it was not worth fixing up VSS. That is one opinion and I'm not surprised he would

Another alternative

Editor:

I have been recently invited, along with all members of the public, to say a few words at a School Board meeting where the fate of Victoria Public School was discussed.

Parent-group lobbyists and Board officials indicated no little lack of enthusiasm for what, speaking as a thrifty taxpayer, I had to tell them.

Being the only speaker on the side of the taxpayers did not help matters that evening, even though I had made three distinct constructive suggestions to help the Board manage a sinking education dollar.

Because neither the Echo nor The Times reporters - judging from their stories - showed more interest in a taxpayer's viewpoint, I would like to set the record straight and briefly outline again my modest proposals:

(a) Victoria Street Public School must be kept going, repaired if necessary with volunteer labour;

(b) Grades K-2 to be transferred to Hodgson, Grades 7 & 8 to be transferred to HHSS, Grades 10-12 transferred to Victoria School (either students or programmes with their instructors).

(c) As a long range outlook, the Board should ready a group of dedicated and knowledgeable individuals from the public (and not necessarily parents!) who would tutor those students at risk of "losing a year", in case of a strike or a lock-out. Such tutoring to be done "at cost".

Not being engaged in a popularity contest, and seeing as my priority a well-spent tax dollar (MY tax dollar!), I have been jotting down a number of other "outrageous" educational ideas and I will gladly bring them forth in future public presentations or letters to the editor.

Charles H. Lutz,

feel this way. It's his business to design new buildings IF we can afford it and IF that is best for the children involved, then it might be the best course. But I do not believe that is the case. We are now 7 years later, the anticipated increase in enrolment did not materialise and in the present economic environment, I'm sure that there are many architects who can come up with many ideas on how to make VSS work safely and adequately and who would be delighted to bid on even this small job.

We were also advised at the meeting that if new classrooms were added then it was required by the Building Code that the old school would have to be completely gutted and even new foundations put in which would obviously be very expensive. Again, no one had costed out if even that course might still be less expensive. As well, I have had some experience with the Building Code and did not understand it to require complete gutting with new foundations. I spoke to the Building Inspector and he knew of no reason why it would be necessary. All new construction must be approved but the existing building can simply be used as is or with those repairs/renovations considered desirable by the Board at that time. It seems, therefore, that the Board may be operating under a serious misconception which could bias a decision unfairly.

I urge the Board to seriously consider the alternative of making Victoria St. School work for the foreseeable future. It could probably be done well within existing funds available to the Board (e.g. Lakeview school funds) and/or other funds allotted by the Ministry and with little or no additional cost to the local taxpayers. We are soon looking at significant local taxes to pay for the new high school addition. To impose $600,000 or more on local taxpayers at this time is not welcome, particularly when another desirable alternative is available.

Len Creelman,
Haliburton.

Unnatural wonders

Editor:

The natural wonders of the Haliburton Highlands are well known to both seasonal and year-round residentsmagnificent vistas around every corner... breath-taking views around every curve.

But during the season when the trees are clothed in their leafy coverings or when people driving down the byways are too intent on reaching their destinations to really be aware of their surroundings, too many "Unnatural Wonders" are missed.

For instance, "The Shoe Tree", this wonder out on South lake Road, has become an unofficial tourist attraction. This ancient tree has literally hundreds of shoes, slippers and boots fastened to its trunk and branches. No one appears to know exactly how this tradition started. Perhaps in the cool twilight of long summer evenings, small groups of mystic followers search out this tree and leave their footwear in silent tribute to some uncelebrated deity.

Out on Highway 35, if you look up high enough (30 or 40 feet above the ground), you may notice attached to poles and trees "Air Mail Boxes" Such wonders boggle the mind. What energy or force encouraged mere mortals to scale such heights for the pleasure of anonymous passers-by?

Then there is the IGA Road in Minden. It has a proper street sign verifying its existence. How many people driving by, innocently assume that this is just a short and ordinary roadway with an unusual monicker and try to pronounce it as such (Iga)? That is until they realize that it was undoubtedly named in honour of a particular store in that location, that is commonly known by its initials instead of its proper name of "Independent Grocers Association."

Minden and the surrounding area should be very proud of its "unnatural wonders", as they reveal the outstanding creativity, imagination and humour of the residents.

D.M. Horn, (a frequent visitor to the Highlands),

Minden is not the centre of the universe

Editor:

Minden may be the centre of the universe for those who live in Minden, but for Gladys Kellet-Wruth (letter, February 13), to state Minden had been "selected as the County Seat because of its central location" would be a joke if it were not an affront to those of us who live east of Haliburton.

The only thing Minden is central to is Minden. There are large numbers of taxpayers who live more than an hour away from Minden. It is costly in time, gas and energy for us to go there. It is, in fact, over a year since I was last there and it may be longer before I'm there again.

Minden is a lovely village, but I am grateful to have no reason to make that trip. I am outraged that it continues to be the county seat thereby inconveniencing most of the people in the county when they find they must attend to any item of business in the county seat.

A new county building in Minden makes no sense at all. It disregards the entire eastern side of the county and causes the inhabitants therein to be very second class citizens. A county council that would build a completely new building in Minden rather than in a truly central location is clearly not serving all the taxpayers.

The Times, rightfully, serves those in Minden, but the council needs to be serving the county as a whole. It is too Minden-centred to do that.

Westside, Stamp remain undefeated

by Jerry Grozelle

The stage has been set for an interesting duel tonight. Last Monday, the two undefeated teams in the Minden Men's Hockey Association round robin playoffs will tangle tonight and the winner will be the only team to remain undefeated.

Westside 11, Home Hardware 6

If the Home Hardware squad had been able to contain Westside sniper Scott Hamilton, the outcome of the game might have been different. Hamilton scored nine of Westside's 11 goals and assisted on one of the other two.

Home trailed 4-2 at the half. Hamilton notched his first two, with Andy Campbell and Dave Ross adding one apiece. Hamilton scored four in a row to start the second half and ended the game's scoring with the last three markers. Scott Danilko and Dave Ross picked up five assists apiece. Dave Rogers notched three, Monty Miscio and Paul Walker added three each and Harold Cowan had one.

Dave Hartwick scored a hat trick in the losing effort and assisted on two others. Lawrence Lougheed added a pair of goals and three assists to the Home score. Jim Crawford rounded out the Home scoring with a single. Kim Colliss had two helpers and Fraser Rogers had one.

Stamp 6, KDD 2

Kountry Double D kept pace with Sid Stamp Fuels for one of the two periods of the second game. At the half, the score was deadlocked at 2-2.

But the KDD attack was silenced in the second half while the Stamp crew added four unanswered goals for the 6-2 victory.

Trini Elias and Scott Nesbitt scored one each in the first period to give the Stamp squad a 2-0 lead. Each man assisted the other's marker, with Bern Berry and Boomer Stamp picking up one helper apiece.

Ben Manuge and Charlie Teljeur replied with one each for KDD. Greg Alexander helped set up both of those goals, with Manuge and Rob Adams assisting on one each.

Nesbitt scored his second of the game for Stamp Fuels in the second. Eldon Bull scored twice and Dave Dollo netted one. Boomer Stamp added two more assists to his game total and single helpers went to Dollo, Jarrett Campbell, Tom Miscio, Berry (his second of the game), Bull and Greg Hurley.

Hartwick 8, Times 5

The evening's late game saw Hartwick Construction out-gun The Times in the second period, pulling in front 8-5. The score was tied at 3-3 at the end of the first frame.

Hartwick pulled ahead twice in the first period, but each time, The Times got back on even terms.

Hartwick went ahead 5-3 in the second before The Times got one back. Hartwick put the game out of reach, scoring three in a row for an 8-4 advantage late in the game.

The Times notched the last goal of the game.

Gord Wood, Andrew Burke and Clarke Craig potted two apiece for the winners, while Ivan Ingram and Jason Stamp notched singles. Ingram helped set up five Hartwick goals, Shane Yateman, Ritchie Mills and Glen Hall had two assists each and single helpers went to Craig, Stamp and Burke.

The Times sharpshooters were Mark

Thompson (with two), Bill Moffatt, Paul Mayo and Jeff Howe. Howe drew assists on all four of the goals he didn't score for The Times. Dwayne Warburton also had four assists. Ron May and Corey Walker picked up one assist each.

INCOMING: The Crestwood goaltender grabs a high-flying puck during the series opener against the Redmen on February 22 at the Haliburton Arena. The Mustangs galloped to a 6-3 win over the Redmen to take a 1-0 lead in the best of five series. The Redmen are now faced with a situation where they must win the next two games to advance to the finals.

Redmen lose opener to Crestwood

by Jerry Grozelle

Last Wednesday's Kawartha High School Hockey League game in Haliburton wasn't what Redmen captain Jonathan Bishop had hoped for in his first game back. Although he scored two goals, the Redmen lost the second round playoff series opener 6-3 to the Crestwood Mustangs.

"We came out flat," Bishop admitted. "It was our worst game of the year."

Wednesday was Bishop's first game back after several weeks out of the lineup with a broken bone in his leg.

After finishing off Lakefield College School with two one-goal wins, Haliburton coach Ron Yake had predicted much the same against Crestwood. He expected a close, low scoring, defensive game.

"We're not looking to be behind 3-0 in the first period and have to come back," Yake said.

Those words came back to haunt him as Crestwood built a 3-0 lead in the first period. The Redmen never recovered.

Bill Dovell scored the other Haliburton goal. Mark Morissette helped the cause with three assists and Jackie Morrison helped set up two Haliburton markers.

"We can beat them," Bishop said. "I don't think there are any better than Lakefield, the team we just beat out."

The Redmen must win the next two games of the best-of-three series. Game two is scheduled for today at 3 p.m. at the Kinsmen Arena in Peterborough and the third game, if the Redmen win today, will be in Haliburton Thursday at 8 p.m.

Novice B Monarchs doing well in round robin playoffs

The Minden Monarchs novice B hockey team is looking strong in the round robin playoffs. The competition includes teams from Wilberforce, Bobcaygeon, Beaverton, Woodville and Mariposa.

The top three teams will play a round robin series for the league championship and the bottom three will compete for the consolation title.

The Monarchs skated to a 1-1 tie against Wilberforce in the first game. Brandon Davidson and Daryl Arbour played strong defensively in that game.

The next game resulted in a 4-2 loss to Bobcaygeon. Chad Carpenter, Shawn Chapman and David Williams played very well for the Monarchs in that one.

The next two games, both against Beaverton, saw the Monarchs win by scores of 6-1 and 4-0. Minden goalie Ryan Cole has been outstanding throughout the playoffs.

Minden lost its next two games to Woodville by scores of 2-1 and 5-2.

A 5-2 win over Mariposa was the result of Minden's last game.

Playoff goals have been scored by Cory Simms, Mark Fisher, Jason Lyddiatt, James Blakely, Andrew Bull, Kolt Smith and Cory Harrison. Darrin Brown and Taylor Lougheed helped the Minden cause with assists.

The last game before the final round robin is decided will be in Minden on Tuesday, February 28 at 6 p.m. when the Monarchs will take on Bobcaygeon.

Midgets drop game one to North Frontenac

Minden's midget A Monarchs will have to play a different style of hockey from what they did in the series opener against North Frontenac.

The Monarchs trailed 3-0 at the end of the first period and the visitors held that lead until the early stages of the third.

Curtis Reynolds got Minden on the scoreboard a minute and 47 seconds into the third. Curtis Fielding and Chris Fitzell assisted.

North Frontenac went on another scoring rampage, netting three goals in a span of two and a half minutes.

Reynolds notched the last marker of the game with 54 seconds left. That unassisted effort was his second goal of the game.

The two teams were scheduled to play Saturday in North Frontenac and Sunday back in Minden. The Times will have the results of those games next week.

Playoffs continue

One week remains in the Minden Men's Hockey Association round robin playoffs.

On March 6, Hartwick will take on Westside at 8 p.m. KDD will tangle with The Times at 9 p.m. and the 10 p.m. game will pit Home against Stamp.

The top two teams at the end of the round robin will battle it out in a best of three series for league supremacy. The championship games will start at 9 p.m.

Minden senior curlers enjoy fun day

by Dave McAdam

Fun, fun, fun was the order of the day for the Minden Seniors Curling Club on Sunday, February 12. From the very competitive curling of the mixed teams where skips threw lead rocks with balloons attached and the light curlers who hogged rocks were required to run and ring the bell, to the antic story telling of Gail Grainger and Harry Troup's sing-a-long, all present came away with broad smiles on their faces.

Convenor Hugh Hamilton and his committee did an excellent job of setting up a really enjoyable afternoon of good sport and good fare. Supper was pot luck, consisting of truly delicious dishes of a variety of recipes as well as truly sinful desserts prepared by our members and set out buffet style for all to enjoy.

The curling consisted of two games and two draws of four ends each. At the end of the day, we had first, second and third winners from each of the two games.

The following were the winning teams in the first games: First place -- skip Hal Burton, vice Joan Davies, second Aileen Blears, lead Charlie Hadley. Second place -- skip Bill Milford, vice Jean Hewitt, second Claire Brown, lead Herb Taylor. Third place -- skip Tom Hurtt, vice Dave McAdam, second Ruth Hamilton, lead Pat Scott.

Winners of the second game were: First place -- skip Tony Dymott, vice Shirley Brandon, second Ralph Newton, lead Muriel Green. Second place -- skip Ursula Dymott, vice Gord Arthur, second Cliff Green, lead Bill Strype. Third place -- skip Russ Fair, vice Gladys Wruth, second Lenore Troup, lead Todd Grainger.

The fun continued into the prize awards. A number of incidental prizes were generously donated by Ted and Ruby Wilkes and were presented by our president's wife Joan Davies, who was pressed to find categories to relate to these awards. As a result, she went to other sports and presented a prize for "closest to the hole" to team Ken Walsh; "longest drive" to team Vi Walsh; "hole in one" to team Jack Robson; "MVP" to Jean Jackson; and "highest losers" to team George Hewitt.

The chicken class cross-ice draw shots were won for the first game team of Lloyd Boskett and the second game team of Katie Parker by some excellent rocks delivered from north-west corner hacks to the south-east corner house. We would normally congratulate the winners of all these events here, but considering all of the enjoyment all who were there experienced, we were all winners when the day was through.

McGlade scores his first goal of the season

Minden's tyke A Monarchs hockey team played in Woodville on Sunday, February 19.

Although the Monarchs lost the game by a 3-1 margin, it was a big game for David McGlade. McGlade played a strong game, scoring the lone marker for the Minden team. It was his first goal of the season. Jordan Joanu assisted.

The Monarchs won't see action again until Sunday, March 12, when they will go back to Woodville for a rematch.

The tournament in Haliburton will be March 18, not February 18, as previously reported.

Spirit Week hijinx invades high school

by Misty Bennett, HHSS student reporter

Spirit Week. The phrase evokes the image of hundreds of teens acting silly, dressing weird and having the time of their lives.

Last week, Spirit Week grabbed hold of HHSS, putting fun in the spotlight. The SAC (Students Activity Council) brought theme days and fun sports to the high school.

Monday's theme was PJ and Bedhead Day. The general idea was simply to roll out of bed and come to school. On Monday there was no such things as a "bad hair day" and the more comfortable your PJs the better. Tuesday was Plaid Day. This day probably has the most support as nearly everyone seems to own plaid clothing. Wednesday was Sports Day and the halls were filled with baseball uniforms, team sweaters and even a few wet suit clad seniors. The final theme day, Thursday, was slated as Goodwill Day. Students were asked to wear clothes that were a little past style or slightly outgrown, that could be donated to goodwill at the end of the day, so a change of clothes was mandatory.

Throughout the week, fun sports were offered in the gyms at lunch time accompanied by the school's stereo system blaring out tunes sure to get everyone in the funtime mood.

The first sport offered was The Joust, a sport with which any American Gladiators fan would be familiar. Two opposing students are placed facing one another on platforms. Each contender is handed an oversized Q-Tip and the idea is to dislodge your opponent onto the air-filled mattress below using brute strength and maybe some strategy.

The other sport was the ever popular Velcro Olympics. Students dressed in velcro suits must get through a challenging course plastered with the "fuzzy velcro stuff". This course is air inflated and truly provides an amazing challenge.

The SAC was able to rent these sports from E.T. and C, a Toronto-based company. Tiffany Orpana, co-president of the SAC states "We did it (rental of gym sports) last year and the students responded really well. We thought we should bring them back for this year."

There was also a slam dunk contest held on Thursday at lunch and a basketball game between the students and the teachers was planned for Friday.

Traditionally, Spirit Week has ended with Carnival Day on Friday. It was a chance for everyone (students and teachers) to escape the walls of the high school for a day of activity within the county. Unfortunately this year Carnival Day had to be cancelled. The students were told that for Carnival Day to run at least 500 students had to have signed up and paid for one of the many activities offered, before the deadline, February 17. By this deadline, 502 had signed up but only 350 students had paid. Consequently Carnival Day had to be cancelled, but only for this year. Orpana is hopeful that Carnival Day will be part of the Spirit Week festivities in years to come; however she admits, "The students will have to keep their end of the bargain in order to get it back."

Ridgewood Ford BonspielLindsay rink first winner of new spiel

by Dave McAdam

The Minden Seniors Curling Club was the host to a new bonspiel, which is expected to be an annual event for at least the next five years. It is a senior men's competitive league event and it took place at the Minden Curling Club on Tuesday, February 21.

The sponsor for this new spiel is Ridgewood Ford, also a new corporate neighbour in this community. The company has put up a beautiful new trophy, to be awarded to the team with the highest total score for the day-long spiel.

The bonspiel, this year, consisted of two games, each with two draws of eight ends. Teams from Lindsay, Beaverton, Peterborough, Dalewood, Orillia, Fenelon Falls, Woodville, Haliburton and Minden participated.

At the day's end, the Ridgewood Ford Trophy was presented to the winning team by Julie Moynes, wife of Ridgewood Ford's proprietor.

The team skipped by Jack DeBois of Lindsay was the winner of the first bonspiel. Names of the winning rink will be engraved on a gold shield and mounted on the trophy.

Winners of the two games were:

First game -- first place, Alex Imrie of Woodville; second, Don Moorby of Peterborough; third, Reg Inch of Dalewood; and fourth, Ken Phillip of Fenelon Falls.

Second game -- First place, Jack DeBois of Lindsay; second, Ross Davies of Minden; third, Ed Pickard of Haliburton; and fourth, Al Corner of Beaverton.

These winners were all acknowledged with awards of meat or poultry prizes and golf hats from Ridgewood Ford.

The club served up a pleasant light lunch to the curlers, who sat down together as teams and were able to get to know one another and enjoy some good fellowship and curling banter.

Scholarship winner

A Minden resident has won scholarships valued at $2,950 at Wilfrid Laurier University in Waterloo. Angela Camelon, who graduated from Haliburton Highlands Secondary School in 1994 and is now in the first year of the honors chemistry program at Laurier, will be among 75 students honoured at an awards ceremony at 4:30 p.m. on March 8 in the Maureen Forrester Recital Hall on campus.

Camelon will receive a Canada Scholarship. This $2,500 scholarship is awarded by the federal government to reward academic excellence and encourage more of Canada's most promising students to choose careers in science and engineering. It is renewable up to three times for a total value of up to $10,000.

She will also receive a $450 Science Incentive Scholarship, awarded to students entering a science program with an average of more than 80 per cent.

Angela is the 20 year old daughter of David and Joanne Camelon, who live on Highway 121 in Minden.

Centre has information on Kids Help Line and early life insurance benefits

The Canadian Children's Foundation Helpline for children and youths began operation in June of 1989. A toll-free line provides professional guidance to troubled children across the country in a friendly, anonymous manner, by way of a free telephone call. The service is available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

Skilled professionals provide information, referrals and counselling to help young people tackle such problems as family breakup, relationships, loneliness and depression, physical abuse, sexuality, health concerns and substance abuse.

Children who need help may call free of charge using the toll-free number 1-800-668-6868.

The government is acting to make it easier for people who are terminally ill to get advance payments on a portion of their life insurance benefits.

The Ontario Insurance Commission has recommended that life insurance companies make advance payments, known as "living benefits" to eligible policy holders for medical care. (For further information on this issue contact Elliott Katz of the Ontario Ministry of Finance, at 416-325-0336.)

Many service agencies in Haliburton County require the assistance of volunteers to help run their programs on a continuing basis or short-term for special projects.

Further information is available by contacting the Haliburton County Information Centre at 457-2733 weekdays or 286-4100 on Tuesdays.

120 attend Valentine's Dinner & Hall of Fame unveiling

Friday February 10, the annual family Valentine dinner was held in the auditorium. It was well attended. One hundred and twenty dinners were served by the kitchen staff and the serviette holders were made by the residents. Wooden hearts hung from the ceiling. They were sanded and painted by some of our male residents. The stage was tastefully decorated by Mel McGuire and Bryan DeLang. Garry Braund from Toronto played the piano. He is the nephew of resident Lucille Clarke. There were presentations made. Residents were inducted into our newly-formed Hyland Hall of Fame. Family members presented photos of their loved one. They will hang in the new Hall of Fame and Trillium Lounge.

This is a tribute to our residents in honour of their lifetime of contributions. Since this memorable evening, several relatives of former residents have inquired. If you would like to have a loved one, a former or present resident inducted please contact Doris Robertson at 286-2140.

The evening was a memorable event for all concerned. Doris is to be commended for all her work in making such a wonderful happening. She has received so many letters congratulating her and thanking her for all her efforts. Many a tear was shed at the presentations. I was blurry-eyed as I viewed the pictures in the auditorium.

Monday a.m. February 13 there was fitness with Doris assisted by Janice Rachar. In the afternoon there was residents' council.

Tuesday morning chapel service was conducted by Pastor Fast. He played the guitar. As it was Valentine's Day the Pastor talked on love. He brought a big red heart to the residents. Thank you so much Pastor.

In the afternoon, crafts was a quilt tying bee. Corinne Bonneville sewed the top. Now the residents are tying it. In the evening Pearl Cowen had cards for those interested.

Wednesday Doris and Janet had fitness once again. In the afternoon, bingo was well attended. Pearl, Janice and Mabel Deacon helped the folks. In the evening, Everett and Terri-Lynn Fairrey entertained on their guitars and sang country ballads.

Thursday morning, residents limbered up with exercises under the leadership of Doris and Janice.

In the afternoon, the Minden U.C.W. served a lovely lunch. Elva Deacon played the piano. Thank you ladies.

Friday morning, residents folded serviettes. This helps the kitchen staff and gives the folks something useful to do.

Friday afternoon Don White and Bill Payne, along with Doris, entertained at Happy Hour. Faithful volunteers were Don and Ellen Holden and Pearl Cowen.

Saturday, Shirley and Murray Davis entertained. Shirley plays guitar and Murray the accordion.

Sunday afternoon Estella Burch read to the residents. In the evening, Reverend John Burgess delivered the sermon.

Birthday wishes are in store for Marjorie Shuyler and Eileen O'Brien. Congratulations.

We send our deepest sympathy to the family of the late Charles Welch. Charlie passed away at Ross Memorial Hospital on February 13.

We have a new resident. We welcome Georg Brandt to Hyland Crest.

We at Hyland Crest thank the volunteers and anyone else who contributed to the happiness of our residents this past week.

The problem with a globalized economy

When World Bank economist Herman Daly returned to academia, he suggested we stop counting consumption of natural capital as income and that we should tax labour and income less and resource throughput more. Here are two more proposals in his parting shots:

"Maximize the productivity of natural capital in the short run, and invest in increasing the supply in the long run."

Any economist knows that when there is a factor that limits production, we should make maximum use of what we have and invest in increasing its supply. But many economists don't look on the "natural capital" that comes from the earth as a limiting factor.

Economics is based on the notion that human inventiveness can overcome any limits in nature, creating more or finding substitutes and Daly knows this is a mistake.

"In the past, natural capital has been treated as superabundant and priced at zero...Now remaining natural capital appears to be both scarce and complementary and therefore limiting. For example, the fish catch is limited not by the number of fishing boats, but by the remaining population of fish. Cut timber is limited not by the number of sawmills, but by the remaining standing forests...The atmosphere's capacity to serve as a sink for CO2 is likely to be even more limiting to the rate at which petroleum can be burned than is the source limit of remaining oil in the ground."

But by definition, natural capital cannot be made by us, so how do we invest in building it up? By encouraging different kinds of policies such as "following investments, allowing this year's growth increment to be added to next year's growing stock rather than consuming it. For non-renewables...how fast do we liquidate?...How much of the correctly counted income do we then consume and how much do we invest?...The failure to charge user cost on natural capital depletion surely biases investment away from replenishing resources."

"Move away from the ideology of global economic integration by free trade, free capital mobility and export-led growth - and toward a more nationalist orientation that seeks to develop domestic production for internal markets as the first option, having recourse to international trade only when clearly much more efficient."

At the present time, global interdependence is celebrated as a self-evident good. The royal road to development, peace and harmony is thought to be the unrelenting conquest of each nation's market by all other nations...the word 'nationalist' has come to be pejorative.

Daly points out the strange fact that "the World

Bank exists to serve the interests of its members, which are nation states, national communities, not individuals, not corporations, not even NGOs. It has no charter to serve the one-world without borders cosmopolitan vision of global integration."

"To globalize the economy by the erasure of national economic boundaries through free trade, free capital mobility and free, or at least uncontrolled migration, is to wound fatally the major unit of community capable of carrying out any policies for the common good."

We often see this in Canada where logging, fishing or mining policies that may foster sustainable communities and ecosystems are opposed by transnational corporations whose goal is maximizing returns for investors.

When international agreements are made for global environmental problems, national governments must be able to enforce them. As Daly says: "If nations have no control over their borders, they are in a poor position to enforce national laws, including those necessary to secure compliance with international treaties."

"Cosmopolitan globalism weakens...the power of national and subnational communities, while strengthening the relative power of transnational corporations...It will be necessary to make capital less global and more national...10 years from now the buzz words will be "renationalization of capital"...not the current shibboleths of export-led growth stimulated by whatever adjustments are necessary to increase global competitiveness. 'Global competitiveness' usually reflects...a standards-lowering competition to reduce wages, externalize environmental and social costs and export natural capital at low prices while calling it income."

John Maynard Keynes, one of the founders of the World Bank, wrote in 1933: "I sympathize with those who would minimize, rather than those who could maximize, economic entanglement between nations. Ideas, knowledge, art, hospitality, travel - these are the things which should of their nature be international. But let goods be homespun whenever it is reasonably and conveniently possible; and, above all, let finance be primarily national." Daly forces us to question our current economic paradigm.

AT REST

KERNOHAN, Roy Alexander

-at the Minden Hospital on Saturday February 25, 1995, in his 84th year. Beloved husband of Ethel. Dear father of Jean and Glen. Dear brother of Holly, Maud and predeceased by Taylor. Survived by his nieces and nephews. Rested at the Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home, 127 Main Street, Minden, on Sunday. Funeral Service in the chapel on Monday, February 27 at 1:30 p.m. Spring interment Minden Cemetery. Memorial donations to the Minden Hospital Building Fund would be appreciated by the family.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Gordon Kellett would like to extend a very sincere thank you to their family and friends for all the phone calls, cards, monetary gifts, food, flowers and visits that they all so graciously gave throughout Gord's hospital stays and with his passing. The good caring nurses at Minden Hospital made Dad's stay there so much easier and for that we give you all so much gratitude. To Dr. Warsi, Dr. Bennett Wu and Dr. Holliday-Rhodes, a very special heartfelt thanks. The ambulance drivers were such caring attendants and they went beyond the call of duty. Also a big thank you to Nick Fomenko for plowing out our driveway and supplying us with wood. To David and John Hulbig for keeping our walks and driveway clear all winter. To Cindy, Don, Gavin and Mathew for all their time and wonderful help and support throughout Dad's illness. Their unending help was a Godsend. To everyone who generously donated monies to the Cancer Society and to the Minden Hospital Fund in Gord's memory. To the Gordon A. Monk Family, all of whom are so giving and go the extra mile to see that everything is taken care of to help ease our burden. Gordon, we can't begin to thank you enough for all your time and care. God Bless you all. The sympathy and understanding of our own family and friends have helped so much to lighten the burden of our sorrow. No words can express the full measure of our appreciation. Thanks again. Ruth Kellett and family.
